

Joint Council of Queensland Teachers' Associations

Teachers building the profession for teachers, strengthening the voice of teachers, encouraging engagement by teachers.

What is the JCQTA?

The JCQTA is the Joint Council of Queensland Teachers' Associations—the peak body for education professional associations that provides a common voice on educational matters in the interest of teachers.

Who is involved?

Member associations who are seeking a common voice on educational matters in the interests of teachers and teaching. JCQTA promotes collaboration between member associations and aims to grow our community whose interests are across preschool, primary, secondary, vocational and tertiary sectors.

How does JCQTA operate to assist Teachers?

JCQTA advocates for and lobbies on behalf of teachers with governments of the day, with Ministers and other representatives. JCQTA represents teachers by having representation on a range of committees and actively seeking communication with the decision-makers and the media.

JCQTA conducts professional development for its member associations. JCQTA has held workshops on a range of matters related to running of professional associations, such as the work of executive and copyright training as well as specific training in such areas as governance and media training. JCQTA responds to the professional learning needs of member associations, through member association input.

JCQTA, as an affiliate of APTA - the Australian Professional Teachers' Association, gives feedback on national issues such as the implementation of professional standards for teachers at all career stages. JCQTA holds an annual dinner for Association Presidents and representatives, and an annual forum to discuss issues of relevance to associations.

Teachers and others in the education sector often feel they have no voice in decision-making and are caught in a maelstrom of reforms and initiatives. JCQTA works proactively for the classroom teacher and others working in school and education settings.

Why be a member of a Professional Teacher Association?

If you are a member of a Professional Teacher Association you can receive and share information about teacher and teaching issues. You generally receive discounted registration fees at conferences and workshops. You are kept up to date on local, state and national issues and can contribute feedback on how these issues affect you - you have a voice. With membership of an association you have declared yourself as a professional. Take the step and elect to join one of the Associations listed on this flyer.
